Increase authority to expand internet connectivity for rural prosecution offices. The Criminal Division's case management system is a cloud-based system for the majority of the prosecution offices around the state. All files and all information in the files is stored, managed, and accessed digitally. Some rural communities are not using the cloud-based system because of poor internet connections. Each of the offices in these rural locations currently has a mirror system that is just hosted on a local server in their office. However, the local systems available in these locations are nearing end of life and need to be migrated to the cloud. Without more robust or stable internet connections these offices will not be able to use the system in the cloud effectively. This increment allows the Criminal Division to improve and expand internet services by utilizing a low-earth orbit satellite connection in order to enhance prosecutorial services.

As state and local law enforcement throughout Alaska continue to expand their use of multimedia evidence collection and maintenance, the prosecutors and staff of the Criminal Division must also receive, review and store this same evidence when cases are referred for prosecution. This increment allows the Criminal Division to purchase software and storage services that will allow the division to efficiently manage all audio and video evidence for discovery in criminal cases, including video from body cameras worn by law enforcement agencies such as the Alaska State Troopers and the Anchorage Police Department, with the appropriate software maintenance and data storage. In addition to the essential services that this software will provide so that the division can meet modern public safety needs, the division will work to integrate this software with the Criminal Division's case management system, Prosecutor by Karpel, further enhancing data availability and coordination amongst prosecutors and staff to improve outcomes across the criminal justice system.

Add one full-time Investigator 3, range 18, located in Anchorage for election fraud and other matters handled by Special Prosecutions. There are no dedicated investigators for elections fraud in Alaska. Reports of potential election fraud are assigned to a law enforcement officer who must simultaneously handle other criminal investigations. Thus, the election fraud investigation is worked alongside other matters including crimes against a person. This can result in lengthier time frames to complete. Having a dedicated investigator allows election fraud matters to be a primary focus for the investigator during the election season (25% of the position - 6 of 24 months). Election fraud cases usually only present themselves close in time to an election. This investigator position can help fill another need in the Office of Special Prosecutions by providing investigative services to two other areas: conflict cases and major felonies from rural communities. Conflict cases are ones in which a law enforcement officer or other public official is a victim or defendant which creates a conflict for the local district attorney's office to handle the case. Special Prosecutions also handles major cases (homicide, felony sex offenses, and other violent felonies) from a number of communities throughout western Alaska. Law enforcement is stretched thin in these areas, which makes follow up investigation difficult to accomplish.

Add one full-time Attorney 5, range 25, located in Juneau for parental rights in education advocate. There are a number of education laws that protect parental rights in directing and guiding their child's education. But it can be difficult to understand and know what those rights are and how to advocate for them. This new position within the Department of Law that would be housed with the Consumer Protection Unit would assist parents in advocating for themselves and their students with schools and school districts.

Add one full-time Attorney 5, range 25, located in Juneau, for Civil Division to lead on Tribal law civil issues. This Civil position would oversee and coordinate the myriad of civil issues that continue to arise, such as compacting (child welfare, education and potentially gaming), government to government consultation, sovereign immunity, regulatory actions by the federal government, etc. This work is currently consuming time for more than 10 attorneys, who already have existing workloads. Adding this lead attorney to manage the larger picture, act as a liaison and be the subject matter expert to consult would ensure the department could adequately address these issues and start thinking more strategically and creatively about how to effectively partner with Tribes while also asserting the state's rights and sovereignty when needed.
